VIA S. FAUSTINO, 41 – BRESCIA

As years go by, the European Union and its Member States very often have to tackle problems deriving from the dialectical relationship between competition law and protection of social rights. These problems, which are at the very heart of European integration, concern different sectors of legal regulation, including not only European and International law but also Civil Law, Labour Law, Tax Law and Administrative Law. This course aims to give students and legal experts a general overview of EU competition law and an opportunity to explore the tensions between economic freedoms and fundamental social rights, as well as the attempts to find a balance undertaken by European and national institutions. The program will provide a theoretical and practical training on some selected issues, such as the consequences of abuse of dominance, the relationships between state aid, preferential tax treatment, procurement law and the protection of social rights, the delivery of services of general interest and green clauses. The final goal is to promote an understanding of the legal and social conditions within which the European economic system can evolve while maintaining social cohesion.
